LADIES NIGHT SUCCESS

The Eastend Kinsmen put on the biennial Ladies Night Out party on Friday at the Memorial Hall. Next year will be the Kinettes turn to put on Men's Night Out. This year was a huge success for the Kinsmen and our community. Over $10,000 was raised at Friday's "waiter auction" alone. The girls were definitely having a great time dancing to the music when I arrived to ferry home the tired. The best part is that local businesses were supported for the food and drink at the event, and all of that money raised will find its way back into our community via donations from the Kinsmen.

FREE EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS WORKSHOP

March 19th at the Tea Room. The key to surviving any emergency is be prepared and keep a level head. Attending this workshop will take care of half of those requirements. The workshop will be held on Wednesday, March 19 from 3pm-5pm. Parties interested in attending should RSVP to Rosa at the Town of Eastend office.

Donations of clean clothes and accessories in decent condition are happily accepted at the Eastend Library during open hours until March 15th. Go through that closet and get rid of that thing you haven't worn in 5 years or those shoes that never went with anything!

250 ELM AVE N.
EASTEND SK

This is the continuing series taken from John Schmitt's script of the 2014 Centennial celebration train tour to Shaunavon.

THE LAKE

You will note the flat land the train is going through. Well before the coming of the rail road this was a lake that drained off of both ends, The south end ran down the White Mud valley (now called Frenchman) and on to the Gulf of Mexico. The north end drained into the Swift Current creek and on to Hudson Bay. So we are crossing a Continual Divide. History says that the different First Nation Bands used this lake as natures food source . They had boats made from the hide of one large male Buffalo. In 1913 the CPR determined the best route for the rail track lay down the lake bed and they drained it out the south end.

CHIMNEY COULEE

Looking to the north and west of this lake bed you can see a long coulee . This is called Chimney Coulee. The First nations had winter camps in the wooded coulees north of Eastend and likely Chimney Coulee as well. There was a Metis presence in this coulee too as early as the 1860's.

Isaac Cowie a Hudson Bay trader built a post in 1871 with the help of these Metis. He was only able to stay till the spring of 1872 as the hostility of the Blackfoot made him abandon the post. During that winter he traded for 750 large Grizzly hides, 1500 Elk hides as well as much fur from other smaller animals, Local history from Corky Jones says: Later The Metis had a village in this coulee, They had a Catholic chapel and it was first called Chapel Coulee. A Metis cemetery exists which has 6 graves. (My Father took me (John Schmitt) there when I was a youngster).

According to Corky Jones their log buildings were long and narrow about 14 feet wide and 30 or so feet in length with sand stone chimneys in each divided off room used by several families . However, what has been found so far archaeologically is only evidence for single-room cabins. In the 1880's when the buffalo were gone the Metis moved on and the first settlers came, pretty much all that remained was stones from these chimneys, in 1915 the last chimney collapsed. These Metis lived a simple existence following the buffalo herds trading hides and pemmican to the Hudson Bay and other traders . They traded for guns, powder, lead bullets or shot, shells, beads, cloth, tea, flour and sugar . They lived mostly on a straight meat diet and the pemmican, which was dried meat pounded mixed with the dried berries in season, and combined with tallow like the first Nations. Bannock was a staple. The NWMP built a post in the coulee in 1876-77. After 1900 Corky Jones, the self taught palaeontologist of Jones Peak fame had a ranch at Chimney Coulee which was later sold to the Duke family who ranched and lived in Corky's cabin. Dukes also had a strip coal mine . There are still descendents of the first Dukes ranching at Chimney Coulee
